Brief Write up on the Programme:

Department of Mathematics organised guest talk on 'Calculus & confusion' on 24 June 2022 from 9.10A.M to 11.10A.M for B.Sc Students. The speaker of the day Mr. Lokesh N, Lecturer Department of Mathematics, RV College Bengaluru, has completed M.Sc in Mathematics at Central college campus Bangalore University, Bengaluru and Internship at Baba Atomic Research Centre Mumbai. He extensively trained more than 10,000 students across 70 institutions in the field of Vedic Mathematics.

The Speaker began the session with background of Vedic Mathematics. He told students that Vedic Mathematics comes from Vedas, more specially Atharva Veda. He explained various high speed methods used for doing calculations and he explained various applications of Vedic Mathematics in aptitude. The students learnt and solved the number of problems using these techniques and enjoyed the session.

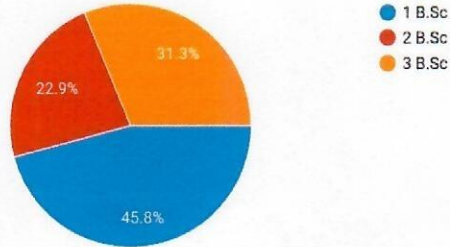

Learning Outcome:

Enhances the students to improve their calculation power. Vedic Mathematics is a beautiful practice that keeps the brain alert and helps in overall development of an individual.
